private advantage to himself, by means of which I considerable decline in stock of the Eric Railroad took place, to the prejudice and pecuniary detriment of his associates. At the expiration of the sisty days during which Drew had con-trol of the 'pool" under the second contract, it is asserted he informed his associates in the "nice little arrangement" that he had successfully conducted the operations of the "pool," and had secured prouts to the Tune of about $220,000 to his chums, and that it was advisable that the agreement should be continued for a further period of sixty days under a l the con-ditions of the original contracts. This proposi-ion received the verbal assent of his associates, and it is charged in the complaint that he operated the stocks as formerly under this new sovenant, employing ofter brokers than Fisk and Beiden, and so concealing his transactions by fictifious names and ofterwise, and thereby preventing his associates from tracing the results of his purchases and sales. In these operations it is alieged he realized profits to the amount of $2,000,000 and unwards, all of which pairs, it is claimed ought upwards, all of which gains, it is claimed, ought to be divided among the parties to the two agreements in proportion to the capital invested by them in the common enterprise, and no por-tion of which should accrue to him, for the reason that he failed to furnish any proportion of the aggregate stock, or to allow Fisk and Beiden to keep the accounts of transactions. On the termination of the second written agreement, May 29, 1868, Huyck and his associates, it is urged, were entitled to an account of the full tran-actions and a delivery of their entire in-terest, including profits realized from the operations of the pool, and that they expected to receive the same, and demanded from Drew, Burr, Belden, and Fisk such an accounting. The latter gestleman, the plaintiff states, wholly neglected and refused to comply with this demand, but retained the entire capital, profits included

The twentieth allegation of the complaint is to the effect that in the early part of June, 1866, Leonard Huyck had become insolvent, and that thereupon Fisk and Belden requested him to execute an assignment in writing of all his right, title, and interest in these Eric pools, which assignment was to be without any consideration, but for the purcose, as they then stated, of enabling them the more easily to settle with Drew the transactions above stated, and to protect the interests of Huyck and his associates. Huyck expressed an unwillingness to comply with this mild proposition, upon which Fisk and Beiden again assured him that their object was only to protect the interests of himself and associates arising out of the trans-actions in Eric stock, and that by having such assignment they (Fisk and Belden) would be able to secure from Drew a more advantageous settlement, and would also secure to him (Huyck) a much larger sum than he could otherwise obtain. They next requested Huyck to agree that if, after making the assignment to them, they should succeed in making an advantageous settlement with Drew in his behalf, he would award them a handsome remuneration for their services. They also represented to him that in his present pecuniary condition it would be impracticable for him to secure from brew the amount really due him, and that it was necessary that his rights and interests should be entrusted to some person who could enforce them, as they (Fisk and Belden) then proposed to do. No oder of purchase was made by these conscientious agents, and Huyck ulti-mately assented to the transfer, and, without receiving any compensation or consideration other than their assurances, signed some paper or written instrument, by the terms of which, for the nominal sum of one dollar, he transferred all his claim to or interest in the "pools

The plaintiff, Stewart, insists that this assignment was, and is in all respects, fraudulent and void, for the reasons that Fisk & Beiden were at that time the agents, factors, and brokers of Leonard Huyck, and had withheld from him all knowledge and information of his rights and interests in the transactions so transferred to them; that no equivalent was paid therefor, and that the same was, in law, iraudulent and void as against the plaintiff, Stewart, who was then, and still is, a creditor of Huyck. Stewart next alleges in his complaint the substance of the following letter:-

Daniel Danw, Esq., New York:— Dear Sir:—Please take notice that Leonard Huyck, on the 19th day of December, 1866, assigned, transferred, and delivered to me all his right, title, and interest of every name and nature, either at law or in equity, in and to any moneys deposited in the pool or operation in Brie Railway stock, in which yourself, E. D. Burr, said Leonard Huyek, Andrew McKinley, George W. Wiley. Henry Cohen, W. C. Dormin & Co., Henry Baxter, and Fisk & Belden are interested, under both of the agreements under which said pool or operation was carried on, and has also assigned, transferred, and delivered to me all his claims for any and all profits arising or growing out of said transactions of every name and nature. And you are hereby notified to settle with me, and with me alone, in regard to the interest of said Leonard Huyck in said operations, and that any payment made by you to another person will be claimed by me to be no payment as against me. I ecember 20, 1866. Joseph B. Stewart. This transfer, it is claimed, was made in consideration of Huyck's indebtedness to Stewart in the sum of $176,900, and since that notification the plaintiff alleges that he has demanded settlement of the affairs connected with the 'pools," but no such payment has been made, or any portion of it; but that Fisk and Belden have combined and confederated with Daniel Drew to conceal the fraudulent transactions, and to enable him to retain possession of all the stock, etc., and have threatened that by means of the great wealth and pecuniary ability of Drew, and their co-operation with him in the transactions, they were able to set at defiance Stewart and all other parties who might seek to recover from Drew their interests in the operations; that Drew, Fisk, and Belden have converted the capital invested by Huyck to their own use; that McKinley, Wiley, Cohen, and Bocock have also each demanded of Drew, Fisk, Belden, and Burr an accounting of the trausactions and the delivery of them of their capital and proportions of profits, but have been refused, and that the plaintiff Stewart has requested Wiley, Cohen, Dornin, Bocock, McKinley, and Baxter to unite with him in the prosecution of this suit, and that they have neplected and refused to do so, and pursuant to law are joined as defendants in the action. In consideration of this moderate category of offenses the plaintiff. Joseph B. Stewart, demands judgment in the sum of $300,000 and upwards as damages, and that for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of damages, capital, profits, etc., Burr. Drew, Fisk, and Belden be compelled, by order of the Court, to furnish a detailed account of all the transactions in relation to the pools of Eric Rallway stock, of the proportions of capital and profits to which each of the parties to the agreements is entitled, and an order of arrest for Drew, Fisk, and Belden for their wrongful and deceiful

The order of arrest has been granted, as already stated, and Drew furnished bail in the sum of $250,000, and Fisk and Belden in $50,000

Annexed to the complaint is an affidavit by Joseph B. Stewart, vouching for the authority of all the sliegations and certifying to the handwriting of the following letter, which is also appended, and is alleged to have been written by William Belden to W. C. Dornin:—

OFFICE OF FISE & BELDEN, 37 BROAD STREET. NEW YORK, June 13, 1866.—Dear Willie—I am sorry to find that you are so far away as to make it necessary for me to write what I shall say, as it is not possible for me to make myself so well understood on paper. However, the matter should not, in justice to all concerned, be postponed any longer. So I will attempt to write what I would say, and must remark, in the outwhat I would say, and must remark, in the outset, that if there is anything that you don't understand, please make a note of it, and I will explain when I see you. We have been old and fast friends, Willie; no one can prize friendship more than I have valued yours. I hope you will read this letter carefully, and know that I have always fully trusted you in every way as my very dear friend, and one to whom I owe integrity and good faith. We have made money. A turn in the market came, and we money. A turn in the market came, and we have had good and bad luck. I want you to have had good and bad luck. I want you to know one thing. You helped me on my start in business, I made up my mind you should never lose a cent by or through me, and you never shall. You have felt aggrieved at the course I have taken as a member of the firm with regard to you and your interests. You have had ample reasons to think that so. So has every one in the pools. I think they all besides yourself understand matters and feel differently. I now want to explain to you, so that you may understand too. Follow me carefully, and when I am through judge for yourself. Almost immediately after the stock had been purchased for the second Eric pool recoilect the brst pool stood at a prott), almost unmediately, I say, kisk and I discovered to a certainty that Damel Drew and E. D. Burr were engaged in a cool, deliberate game to swindle and defraud those in the pools. We set up all night over it at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and make up our minds that we would take the folowing course-be quiet and say nothing, as we could say nothing that would benent any one at the time. To have told the members of the pools the facts in our knowledge would have, of course, brought on difficulty at once, in which event Mr. Drew would probably at the most have to do nothing more than refund the original margins. The members of the pool would just have recovered what they put in, and would have gone from us, feeling that they had got their tails out of a trap, and would never have believed that Fisk & Beiden were looking after their interests, to let Mr. Drew swindle them under our very eyes. We knew, Mr. Drew knew, so did Burr, they had been committing fraud, and were at the mercy of any one instituting an investigation. We knew that Mr. Drew could never get away from this, if we kept the tacts for proof, so we saw that he would go on, and almost without doubt speculate and make money. We got the second paper signed, well knowing that if it did not result advantageously we could have Mr. Drew held on the original paper, and if we did, we could accurate the profits accurate to those concould secure the profits according to those com-posing the pool. Matters might be improvedcould not militate to the disadvantage of the pools. I would say here that Fisk and myself have acted throughout and entirely under the advice of D. D. Field, and are confident that what we now state to you is to be relied on. what we now state to you is to be relied on.

Mr. Drew has been speculating; has made a large amount of money. He intends to defraud the gentlemen in the pools out of their rights.
We have stood here, having appeared to stand by Mr. Drew; who has taken it for granted that Fisk and I would help him through with his devilish schemes, as he could not very well swindle without Fisk and I knowing it; seeing in the ouiset that by remaining perfectly quiet we could put ourselves in a position to see and learn a great deal for the microsts of the pools, provided Mr. Drew did not mistrast us. He never did, and does not now. Burr and he both believe that we are going to stand by and see you plundered. So we have had to keep up false appearances and suffer our friends to think ill of us here. Drew and Barr have had a speculative account here, and have lost a great deal of money on it; and now that the pool has nad a profit they ciaim that those transactions were made for the account of the pool. Fisk and I are prepared to prove that they were not. Now, Willie, you ought to have a dividend of $50,000 for your interests. Mr. Drew has made an enormous amount of money. We have watched him carefully, and I think that Fisk and I will be able to recover a very large amount of the concern, if every one will back us right up. I have seen about every one but yourself. I want you to know that Fisk and I intended to show you us, Fisk and Belden. Daniel Drew gave General Baxter a written letter of guarantee to refund him his money and interest before the signing of the second paper, so as to influence the rest through the General, who was disposed to show fight at the time, so we don't care what the General does. Fisk and I knew that at the time. We said nothing, only this is one of the links in the chain of evidence. Fisk and I have them all down. Now, Willie, Fisk and I intend to stand right ap for the right of the joint concern. Had I seen you I could have explained everything at greater length than I can on paper. We think we have done right, and I hope you will think so too. It has been hard, Willie, for me to know that you were grieved towards me. I love you as a friend—as my oldest and best friend—and I do hope you will see that I have tried to do right. You will see that I have tried to do right. You will see what a difficult place I was in. Fisk and I under advice pledged ourselves not to say a word to any one, but let every one talk; but it would have upset a great object if D. D. had mistrusted us. Now, one word between ourselves. Do judge me kindly. Willie, for the sake of Auld Lang Syne. Your wedding-day is approaching. There is no one who will feel so bindly towards you or whom I web accused. kindly towards you or whom I wish so much success as you. I hope you may be happy. I shall try to be at your reception. Now, no one will be there who wishes you better, or is more your friend. Please replyto this letter. The pool matter will be all settled very soon—per-haps in a week. Mr. Drew has stated that he was nearly ready, and matters approach a climax. Willie, he is the worst man I ever heard or read of. He will not escape this time. Be sure we shall make him disgorge. Mr. Field gives the case his most careful attention, and says that everything is all ready. This letter is of course confidential, and I would add that you may have heard that Zerger, Berry & Co. have come to grief in a private way. It is not known in the street. It was owing to their heavy speculations in gold, of which it seems they were short for a million at 125. Their trouble has cost us a good deal. Fisk had some of my money. Keep this to yourself. Of course he blistered me. I have just read this. I feel that I have not expressed myself as I should. Please write me a letter, and say what you think; and I hope when I see you up at H., on your wedding day, I shall be able to see you gentlemen that as you intrusted your money to our keeping, to look after your interests, you shall all have it to the last cent that is due to you, and tear or favor to no one shall prevent. Messrs. McKinley, Wiley. Bird, Cohen. Sam Bocock, Moody, and Strasburger bave ail pro-mised us that they will stand up behind us. and when we show fight, will make common cause.

Huyck's interest, or 2500 shares, belongs to alone for a short time. Yours, ever, WILLIAM BELDEN. You might have invited me to your wedding, as well as to the reception.

Later Developments. On Friday afternoon another combshell was thrown among the "operators" in the shape of an order of arrest issued by the Supreme Court against Joseph B. Stewart and Leonard Huyck. fixing bail in each case at $200,000. The gentlemen were both quietly arrested and escorted to Ludlow street jail, where, as it is asserted that "misery invariably loves company," they are at present, doubtless endeavoring to console each other. Sic transit gioria mundi. On Saturday ball was offered in the case of Mr. Stewart, but his chivalric nature induced him to refuse its acceptance, unless Huyck could be released

The case of Stewart vs. Drew et al. developed the fact that Huyck had assigned to Stewart a claim upon what was denominated by its managers an "Eric Railway pool," carried on by Drew and associates, Huyck's interest being

The Government, ascertaining these facts, now wishes to make good its loss of about three-quarters of a million, sustained in May, 1866, through the failure of the Merchants' National Bank, at Washington, of which Huyok was Pre-sident. After investigation, the Government claiming a priority of lien upon all the assets of the bank, proceedings were instituted, and Stewart and Huyck were arrested on a charge of conspiracy to defraud. Stewart's name appears on the certificate of organization of the Merchants' National Bank as a stockholder, having six hundred shares, worth $60,000. Mr. Stewart denies that he was ever connected as an officer or stockholder of the bank, and holds strong proof of that assertion, his name having been affixed to the certificate by one Oscar S. Stevens, during Mr. Stewart's absence from Washington. These facts were elicited on the investigation before the Committee on Banks and Banking, at Washington, in July, 1866.

This action is brought by the Government, through James C. Kennedy, Receiver of the Merchants' National Bank, plaintiff, against Leonard Huyck and Joseph B. Stewart, de-

THE APPIDAVITA upon which the orders of arrest were granted, upon application of Sterne Chittenden, of counsel, were made by H. R. Hulburd, Comptroller of the Currency, and set forth that deponent is the chief officer of the Bureau in the Unued States Treasury which is charged with the execution of the United States statute known as the National Currency activity and expensions of that activities are activities. that under the provisions of that act, and espe cisily of section 50 thereof, he mas, as such officer, general direction and knowledge of the affairs of the Merchants' National Bank of Washington; that in pursuance of his duties he has acquired a knowledge of the matters set forth in the affidavit, which is made in furtherance of the discharge of his duties as a public officer; that Leonard Huyck was, at and prior to February, 1866, an officer of the bank, and about that date, by embezzlement, in which Joseph B. Stewart was a participant, took into his posses sion and control moneys of the said bank amounting to more than $200,000, in conse quence of which it became necessary to appoint a receiver; that Huyck and Stewart have concealed, with intent to defraud said bank, what disposition was made of said moneys or their proceeds, which are in their present form and interest in a pool of Eric Railway stock conducted in the stock market of the city of New York by Daniel Drew and others; further, that Huyck and Stewart have assumed ownership and control of the proceeds and are about to dispose of or transfer the same with intent to defraud the same; that they allege that the interest is worth more than the said sum, and are endeavoring, by secret means, to reduce to possession the said interest, with intent to defraud the bank aloresaid; that Joseph B. Siewart was, until recently, resident of the District of Columbia, and has not since acquired a residence in the State of New York although both he and Huyck are now in the city of New York; that in the organization certificate of said bank Joseph B. Stewart is named as a shareholder, and in the certificate of officers and directors is named as a director of swid bank; and asks that an order of arrest against Huyck and Stewart be issued for such future relief as shall be awarded, with attach ments against their property or assets alleged by them to be their property, if it shall appear to be deponent's duty in the discharge of his obligations in the premises to make application for such warrants.

These actions will be tried in the Supreme Court, and it is expected that some startling revelations will be made in reference to the "pool operations" in Wall street, as well as in relation to the collapse of the Merchants' Na-tional Bank at Washington.
